

A NEW METHOD IN BACON-CURING.

SUCCESSFUL DEMONSTRATION.

The demonstration which was given at Warkworth on Saturday last by Mr. G. Hartmann, agent for Sycamore's patent process of being able to cure, dry, roll and smoke a pig up to 200lbs. weight, and ready for the market in eight days, was a highly successful one. To those who have in the past been accustomed to the arduous method in vogue, the new idea as exemplified by the demonstrator will be accepted with much satisfaction.

The pig which had been slaughtered the previous day, was put on the scales and weighed 165lb, being then dressed and trussed by Mr Hartmann, who explained the method of how to kill, bleed and truss the animal so as to get every drop of blood from the carcass while hanging up. He pointed out the extra care that should be taken in this connection. He also showed in a practical manner how disease may be discovered in the glands, liver, lung and entrails. The pig was then cut up, and a lesson in boning and rolling given, the parts afterwards being put under cure.

Those who remained and were given the recipe are more than satisfied, and the information derived regarding disease was alone, in the opinion of several, well worth the money.

Milking cows is always rough on the hands, they get hard and chapped. If Nazol Ointment is used regularly, the hands will be kept soft and free from cracks.

IN MEMORIAM.

A gloom was cast over the Omaha district when it became known that Sergeant Gilbert Rollinson, of Parnell had been killed in action in France; being a brother of the late Mrs D. Knaggs, of Te Point, he was well known and respected in this district.

For a number of years in the summer he brought up a troop of Boy Scouts to camp at Te Point. Although the boys had the time of their lives, religious observances were not neglected. Scouts were assembled for prayers night and morning, and Sunday was observed by Church parade in the morning in Daere's Hall, Sunday school in the afternoon and Church parade in Leigh Hall in the evening, Mr Rollinson conducting the services. He was superintendent of St Mary's Sunday school for a number of years, was an expert in modern religious teaching, and was in request in introducing his system into the Auckland and suburban schools. He devoted his life to the spiritual and moral well being of boys, and many of the young fellows who passed through tutelage, and now out in the world or at the front, will mourn the untimely death of their late teacher and sincere friend.

The war causes ladies to do more outside work than formerly, and the hands are made rough and the skin cracks. Regular applications of Nazol Ointment which penetrates the pores, will heal the cracks, and take away the roughness.

The best prevention against influenza or colds which are infectious or contagious is to protect the mucous membranes of the nose and throat by taking "NAZOL" on sugar frequently inhaling it through a "NAZOL" Inhaler.

Ladies who do their own housework find their hands get rough and grimy. This can be prevented by using Nazol Ointment, which is soft and pliable.

It is so simple and effective for influenza, colds, and coughs. Rub a little on lump sugar and inhale during the day and night. "NAZOL" freely on the face may be inhaled during

KUDZO--THE GREAT FODDER.

TO THE EDITOR.

Sir,— This plant is a native of Japan, where it is a leading crop, and it is also highly commended by the United States authorities. This is a perennial vine, and its numerous merits compared with lucerne, which is styled the "King of fodder plants," are many. It succeeds in any sort of soil, if drained, does not require any fertiliser, it rapidly enriches poor soil. It does not require to be cut at a certain time to save it. It will transform poor soil, or barren hillsides into profitable use, it makes good permanent pasture and it is not injurious to stock at any stage—either green or dry—and when fed to cows it will produce more and richer milk than any other single feed, as it is more nutritious than either lucerne or bran. It is said that in the United States it has produced four cuttings of 2½ tons each per acre annually. It is very drought resistant as it roots deeply, and the vines cover the ground with foliage which acts like mulch and conserves moisture. It is also said that land planted with Kudzo soon becomes like the rich soil that has recently been cleared from the virgin forest, and it becomes richer each year through the large quantity of nitrogen deposited therein. It should be cultivated in rows 8ft apart the first season, after which it will require but little attention.—
Yours, etc ;

Right ; send it along—Editor "R and O. Times.

When your little child is hot, restless and feverish, with a fresh cold, don't delay but immediately give "NAZOL" on sugar, and sprinkle freely a handkerchief with "NAZOL" and pin to the dress, so that the child can inhale it constantly.

If you want your hands to be smooth and skin soft and pliable, use Nazol Ointment. It penetrates the pores, heals the cracks, and takes away the roughness.
